

DIAZ' DEATH REPORTED; IS LATER CORRECTED BY MEXICAN AMBASSADOR

PRESIDENT OF THE MEXICAN RE-PUBLIC SAID TO HAVE DIED
FORTY-EIGHT HOURS AGO

WOOD TO BE IN CHARGE

Meanwhile Troops and Supplies Are Being Rushed to Galveston
Where the Army is to Mobilize at Once.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., March 9.—Despite the denial of the Mexican authorities and reports to the contrary from the city of Mexico, the rumor that President Diaz of the republic across the Texas border was dead, spread swiftly through all the various departments of government this morning.

Official Washington is much disturbed over the situation and there is considerable anxiety as to the truth or falsity of the report which is officially denied by the Mexican Ambassador, Do La Barra, in a formal announcement to all Mexican consuls in America and Europe today.

Should the report prove true the haste with which the army and naval forces have been rushed to the Mexican frontier can be in a manner explained. That they will be needed there is now certain and the possibility of armed conflict appears more certain.

All officials of the government agree that Diaz is the only man in Mexico that can hold the army and government together at this critical period in the history of Mexico. If he is dead the United States will have its work cut out.

The United States will be compelled to either assume a protectorate of the country until a President can be elected or to actually move troops across the border and take control of the country until peace is restored.

All reports to the contrary the War and Navy departments are today the center of interest and much speculation as to whether more than the troops now under order or on their way to Texas will be ordered out at this time.

It is pointed out that the regiments selected for the alleged strategic war game are the pick of the entire service and almost mustered up to their entire fighting force.

It is also pointed out that preparations are being made for an extended stay in the south and quarters masters supplies in large quantities have been ordered rushed to Galveston.

Up To Noon Today.

The Mexican situation up to noon today may be summarized in the following manner.

Troops en route to San Antonio from points in twenty states.

Scout cruiser Chester en route to Hampden, Mexico.

Scout Cruiser Salem en route to Galveston.

Pacific fleet mobilized at San Diego.
Auxiliary transport Prairie leaves Philadelphia with seven hundred marines.

Coast artillery moving to Norfolk from New York for embarkment on a cruiser.

The commissary officers rushed ahead to San Antonio to prepare for the army.

Word To Start.

It was announced this afternoon that General Leonard Wood, Chief of the staff, would leave Washington for San Antonio as soon as the Division is organized. He gave out as his purpose that the trip was merely to review the troops that are being mobilized.

The announcement of Wood's orders to go to the frontier have created considerable talk in diplomatic circles and it is taken to mean that the whole affair is much more serious than was at first anticipated.

Important Meeting.

New York, March 9.—It was learned today that Senator Joseph M. Mainwaring, the Mexican minister of finance, had reached New York for a conference relative to the financial situation in his country with New York money kings.

Later it was learned that he was not in secret conference by J. P. Morgan, Jr., son of J. Pierpont Morgan, president of the banking house of Morgan and company, at the Plaza hotel. This conference lasted several hours.

The banking house of Morgan and company are said to be heavily interested in Mexican properties and ac-curities and this in a way explains the visit of Senator Mainwaring to this city.

Receive Reports.

San Antonio, Tex., March 9.—Mil-ing men who have been here since the insurrection became dangerous for them to remain in Mexico, claim to have received official reports from the interior that President Diaz is dead and has been dead for the past forty-eight hours.

They claim their dispatches come from a source that can not be doubted and say that it will be made public only when the Diaz followers have all their plans laid to control the army.

Vessels Sail.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 9.—The cruisers Pennsylvania, South Dakota, and West Virginia of the Pacific coast fleet with four Admiral Thomas in command sailed this morning at daylight for San Diego to meet secret orders which they will receive from Washington at that point.

Ready to Leave.

New York, March 9.—The big cruisers Tennessee, North Carolina and Montana, the work of coaling and provisioning them having been completed, are expected to sail at daylight tomorrow for Guantanamo, Cuba where they will receive further orders relative to their future movements.

Officially Denied.

ficially denied today that President Diaz of Mexico was dead.

this morning. "The World as a Mar-theme of the day. On various phases of the general topic the congress list-

ASSEMBLY IS TO DRAW A NEW BILL TO MEET DEMANDS

Commission Rule for Cities in State Discussed at Meetings on Tuesday.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 9.—An assembly of the "field day" in the assembly chamber on all bills relating to the commission rule for cities in the state is likely that the assembly committee on cities will draft an entirely new bill to meet the "average" demand of those who have been heard on the subject.
While the demand is unanimous for the rejection of the initiative and recall into the present law, opinions differ on the proposition to change the salaries of mayors and councilmen.

J. Barrett Smith of Madison, chairman of the prohibition state central committee, argued in favor of allowing the cities themselves to decide upon the salaries, the number of commissioners and the length of term of commissioners. John M. Olin of Madison previously had urged the maintenance of salaries commensurate with the kind of men that are wanted, and the Clark bill, which is favored by the Madison contingent, contemplates generous salaries.

Prof. A. L. Mitchell of the Oshkosh normal school strongly recommended the recall provision, and said that the city of Oshkosh is ready to adopt the plan as soon as the law is amended in accordance with the universal desire. Assemblyman J. C.
Gilbertson of Eau Claire, which was the first Wisconsin city to adopt the new system, offered the most diverting talk of the hearing.

Mr. Gilbertson declared that the adoption of the plan in Eau Claire was secured largely through the promise of its supporters that the legislature this year would amend the law by reducing the salaries and including the recall and initiative. He severely criticized the Madison contingent for proposing an entirely new law in accordance with their own ideas—ideas which he said were not adapted to the needs of Eau Claire and probably not to any other city in the state. He pleaded that the law be not disturbed, except as to the three important changes on which there was universal agreement of opinion, until the experience of several cities gives the legislature something upon which to base legislation. He thought also that it might be well to appoint a citizens' committee to investigate the subject and draft an entirely new bill for the next legislature. He urged the passage of the bill to give all cities "home rule" in order that they might settle local conditions for themselves.

Assemblyman Clark of Oshkosh, who is the author of the bill which has received the most support, declared that in his opinion, most of the cities undoubtedly had their own pet ideas as to the methods to be followed in carrying out the commission plan, but that they also were anxious that the law be amended immediately. He sought to have the Eau Claire solid stand delinquency by its objections to the Clark bill and planned down Mr. Gilbertson, who had objected to the provision for six-year terms for councilmen, instead of four years, as now provided.

Prof. Mitchell interjected a question as to the right of the Eau Claire supporters of the commission plan to make promises concerning what the next legislature might do. Mr. Gilbertson said it was universally agreed that the legislature would make many unheeded changes in the law. Assemblyman Roy Reed of Rhyan said that as far as his city was concerned it was preferred that the matter of salary be left to the municipal body. He recommended that it be referred impossible to have names taken on a recall petition once they were signed, either in the case of this bill in the case of drainage petitions worked to a disadvantage and enabled the use of "persuasion" of various kinds after the names were known to those affected by the petition. He also thought that a recall petition should require the signatures of one-third of the total vote for governor at the last election, in order to make the petition truly representative.

Senator W. R. Gaylord of Milwaukee, long, social democrat, spoke for his bill to abolish the present council government law and to permit home rule. Home rule, he declared, was after all the real solution of the problem of municipal government. Instead of "business administration" were universal suffrage, and he cited the case of Milwaukee, which has a pattern-maker mayor, a syndicate president of the council, and so on.

"Self government and efficiency are the two ideals that should be striven for," he said, "and these cannot be attained unless the people are given the duty and power to determine what is to be done."

WORK CONTINUES AT WAREHOUSES

LEAF IS BEING HANDLED BY VARIOUS FIRMS WITH ABOUT

BUSINESS IS RATHER DULL

Only the Ordinary Work of Receiving and Sorting the Crop is Reported by Most of the Dealers. No special feature is to be found in the local tobacco trade for the past week, and the regular work of sorting and receiving occupies the time of the dealers who are working in the new crop. Even the receipts for the week have not been very large as most of the warehouses are fairly well supplied with the crop and amount stored on the floors is being reduced.

Because of this state of affairs and because the local warehouse of the American Tobacco company is not large enough to hold the amount to be delivered, it is the plan of this firm to begin next week weighing up the crops at the farms and paying the growers with instructions to deliver as soon as notice is received. This firm has bought heavily this season and from present indications the work of sorting will continue at the local warehouse until the middle or the last of June.

Sorting will continue for two months or more at the P. S. Haines warehouse, which is now running with a full force. Seven or eight cars of 1910 bundled goods have been received from Northern points during the past week and also several cars of the crop which has been sorted and packed. The sorting room floor of the warehouse is constantly kept filled with the new goods in the case and some special in the bundle. About six weeks is the time required to complete the sorting and a temperature of about ninety degrees is maintained. A large amount of the goods thus prepared for the market has been shipped out already, and one car of the same was sent out during the past week. Several warehouses have already started handling the new goods. The A. H. Hedderly warehouse began operations on Monday of this week with about thirty hands, a force which will be increased in another week. A considerable force has been working for the past week at the N. L. Carlo warehouse with prospects for continuing for some time. Other dealers are working with the usual forces on tobacco which had been received some time ago.

Movement in the old crops, has been rather slack of late and no large sales are reported. Among the consignments which have been shipped out, M. E. Green and Sons, two carsloads of '08; Sanford Sovorill, 45 cases to the eastern market; P. S. Haines, one car of '08; and L. L. Erler a small shipment. Weather conditions continue good for both the handling and delivery of the weed and most of it found in a first class shape. Already some speculation is current regarding the crop for the present year. If the present prospects for an early spring continue, growers will begin to consider the preparation of the seed beds and many of them are busy now hauling manure on fields marked for a crop this season. It is estimated that about the same acreage of last year will be planted, and no material increase is expected.

PERMITS to smoke will be issued next week.

Zuni Toys. Zuni Indians make their toys out of clay and bake them hard so that they will not crumble. They know how to model dolls and goats and frogs and cows, and birds that warble when one fills the hollow body with water and blows through a tube inserted in the back. And they make all kinds of curious clay rattles.

No Human Eye

Is Perfect

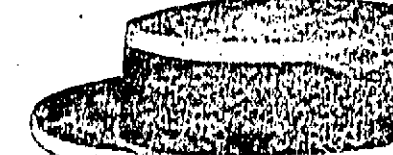

THE eye works on the same principle as a camera. Your brain takes a picture of everything you see. When an eye begins to get weak or some other defect arises it stands to reason that something is wrong and your eye cannot overcome it without help any more than a camera could help itself.

It isn't like getting over a headache or some other local trouble that would adjust itself. The defects must be adjusted before the sight can be improved. On the other hand, you know the result of using any broken machine. It not only cannot do work but will wear out a great deal sooner.

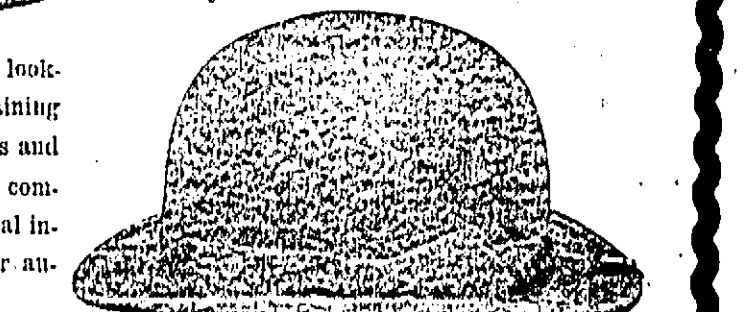

Come into our store and we will test your eyes and show you quickly how much and how cheaply we can help you.

Mrs. Sarah Keegan, Aged 81, Died At Her Home Last Tuesday Evening—Edgerton Items.

Edgerton, March 9.—Mrs. Sarah Keegan died at her home in this city at a late hour Tuesday evening. For some time she had been suffering with a complication of diseases and having attained the age of 81 years there was little hope of relief. She was a native of England, coming here with her husband and children some years ago. Two years ago the only son of the family passed away and eight years ago the father died. Francis, an only daughter survives. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at the late home, conducted by Rev. W. R. Roberts, pastor of the Congregational church.

Farewell Party.
Last night friends and neighbors to the number of forty gathered at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cook, north of the city, taking them completely by surprise. The evening was spent in a joyous manner and dancing was the principal pastime. An elaborate midnight supper brought the happy occasion to a close. The event was in the nature of a farewell party as Mr. and Mrs. Cook are about to move on the Hanson farm at Maple Grove, town of Fulton, which Mr. Cook recently purchased.

Brain Drill With Fingers.
Brain drill with the fingers is the latest recommendation to those who would be efficient. It is not a system of massage that is recommended, but simply the regular use of the hands. The knots, now, do fretwork, anything and everything, in fact, that calls for manual skill you want to have an active, resourceful and versatile brain, people are told. The truth of this statement is said to lie in the fact that in every manual act the hand is directed by the brain. Every act reacts upon the brain, strengthening and stimulating it.

The Guarantee We Give In Writing On the Skavlem Club Piano Is As Strong As Words Can Make It.

Almost any piano can muster up a guarantee of some sort. Some pretty poor pianos sometimes are backed up by fairly good guarantees, while on the other hand some mighty good pianos are handicapped by Poor guarantees. But almost without exception, All Guarantees Are Vague and Misleading. There are a whole lot of "ifs" and "ands" in them. One guarantee will read, "If there is the presence of rust, it is an evidence that the piano has been exposed to dampness," etc., etc.

Another reads, "If the varnish crazes or checks it is due to climatic conditions over which we have no control," etc., etc., and so on through them all. It is "if" this and "if" that, until a great host of piano guarantees mean absolutely nothing.

The first thing to do when buying a piano is, first, to the reliability of the house with which you are dealing and then to look at the reputation of the piano itself. With these 200 Skavlem Club Pianos, we ourselves guarantee them. We are the sponsors for them.

We have gotten up the strongest guarantee we know how to make. If the English language can make one stronger we are willing to sign it. We have eliminated every "if" and every DOUBT. The language of the guarantee is the SPIRIT of it which is to give each and every person who purchases one of these fine pianos positive and absolute protection. We print herewith a copy of the guarantee which is handed to each and every club member in writing the moment they join the club. Can you think of or suggest a guarantee that will be stronger?

Skavlem Club Piano

We guarantee Club Piano (No.) to be free from defective material or workmanship for the period of ten years from date. Should name arise within that time we agree to repair it or replace it if necessary with a new instrument without charge upon its return to us.

The Skavlem Club price is 2 hundred and 77 dollars and 50 cents. The price includes everything. There are no extras of any kind. No interest to be added. Nothing to be added for drayage, freight, stool, scarf—absolutely no extras. Two hundred and seventy-seven dollars and fifty cents is the price and the price includes everything.

These 200 pianos will be sold 5 dollars cash, then 1 dollar and 25 cents a week. The 5 dollars just about covers the cartage and delivering—yet the 5 dollar payment made when you join the club is credited to your account. The piano is delivered immediately. You do not have to wait until the club is filled. You get your piano when you join. The remainder is payable every week. Club members do not have to pay more than 1 dollar and 25 cents a week if they wish. This gives them 218 weeks in which to pay for the piano and still get it at the Club price of $277.50.

Come in and join the club today. The books are now open.

The pianos are on display in our Janesville store. The pianos will be delivered immediately upon your becoming a member and making the initial payment of $5. THE SPECIAL SESSION.

In the House of Representatives of the Sixty-second Congress, called by the President to convene in special session on April 4, the democratic party will have an effective working majority. The democrats will have it in their hands, that is, to put through any measures upon which they may agree among themselves. They will not need any assistance from republican insurgents. In the senate, however, the situation will be somewhat different. There the republicans will have a majority of eight. Control of that body will be practically with the progressive republicans. While the democrats in the House may carry bills over the heads of standpaters and insurgents combined, they can only hope to get their legislation finally enacted by sending up to the senate bills that will command a sufficient number of republican votes, regular or progressive, to insure passage in that chamber.

The House democrats might make political capital of a certain character by passing a batch of radical measures which the senate majority would be compelled to reject; but it is questionable whether any gain accruing on this score would not be more than offset by failure once more to convince the country that it is possible for democrats to be as useful in office as they frequently are in opposition. There is good reason for believing that they see this and that they will take a surer course. It appears that the democratic leaders, realizing the fact that their party is really on probation, have very wisely decided upon a tentative program the carrying out of which need not necessarily arouse extreme opposition in the senate nor lead to industrial disquiet. On the other hand, it is a program to which the progressives in the senate and, in fact, some of the regulars might conscientiously lend their support. Briefly outlined, it embraces the passing of the McCall bill, or some other measure carrying the reciprocity agreement with Canada, revision of the woolen and part of the cotton schedule of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, and the reduction of duties on about 100 articles designated as "necessaries of life." This program may later be extended so as to include the passing of the direct senatorial election proposition, which came so near getting through the senate last week; and it may include, also, a reappointment bill increasing the House membership.

The democrats, by confining themselves to a program of this kind, will be able to keep within conservative lines. They will still have two sessions of congress ahead of them in which they may, at more leisure and with promise of greater success, undertake more ambitious things. And if the party shall make it clear at the outset that its aim is toward corrective and constructive rather than radical and revolutionary legislation, the country, later on, will not object if it enter upon a more comprehensive program.

The democrats will do well to proceed with great deliberation in the extra session. Many of the reforms they are planning to bring about are desirable; but there is no occasion for undue haste, and if they undertake to bring about their changes all at once they will simply be making the blunder anticipated so confidently by their opponents.

CLEANING UP.

Nothing breeds disease more than filth. The order of Alderman Bechholz which passed the council should be taken home to every property owner in the city. Already some of the down town streets have taken on a spring-like air and brooms and shovels are in evidence. Keep the good work up until evidence of the winter's dirt is gone.

Aside from the sanitary condition of the city the general appearance will be improved. The alley back of the postoffice is one of the most exposed in the city and it is safe to say is one of the dirtiest. It should be attended to quickly and when once cleaned, kept clean. In many cities the street department is divided into ward workers. That is, certain men are assigned to certain wards in the city and they see to it that their respective districts are kept clean. Madison has such a provision, why not Janesville? Why not at least look into the matter and see if it is not feasible for this city?

It would save the city expenses in street repair work, cut down the ward funds used and it would not be necessary to have court actions relative to calling repairs "permanent improvements." It would not greatly increase the number of men employed by the street department and the general effect would be most excellent.

BAND CONCERTS.

With the advent of spring come thoughts of the summer months and the pleasures that can be enjoyed. Everyone loves music and there is nothing that delights more people than a band concert. Janesville has a city band that should be encouraged. There should be a public purse given them with the understanding that a series of concerts be given on certain nights during the summer months.

Other cities not half as large as Janesville have these concerts and they are a success; why not Janesville? Write your views on the subject to the Gazette and let us obtain a consensus of opinion in the matter. If they are to be held this summer it is not too early to talk it over and make plans for raising the subscription lists. The following clipping is from the Richmond (Virginia) News Leader of recent date and shows how the public look at the matter of band concerts.

"Editor The News Leader:

"I was mortified and distressed to see reported that Richmond would have no music this year. Music is not a luxury; it is a necessity, according to my way of thinking, and the children in the poorer quarters need music as much as they need sugar; both can be dispensed with, but both would be terribly missed. "Can't The News Leader help in this cause by asking for public subscriptions, so that we may have music in the parks during the three hot months? I understand that this requires about $1,000, and I hereby subscribe $50 towards this purpose, and hope that the good people of Richmond will come forward with their accustomed liberality and public spirit, and give us music to make the afternoons happy for those who must stay at home."

J. H. JONESOFF."

Come to the front with your ideas on the question and let us hear from you.

If Uncle Sam is making merely a demonstration of what he could do in case of war he is putting up a most excellent bluff on the subject.

May 1st as a domestic disturber is nearly as bad as April 1st with the April fool joke of moving.

Parting from one's secretary of the interior is not as sweet a sorrow as one would suppose.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

A MODERN ROMANCE.

From mill hand to president of the United States Steel company is the romance of James A. Farrell, recently elected head of the steel trust.

Farrell's first wages amounted to $145 per week.

His salary is now $50,000.

When sixteen years of age he began working in a wire mill as a common laborer.

Did I say common laborer? Farrell was a very uncommon laborer when he grasped the handles of a wheelbarrow thirty-two years ago.

It took him just nine years to become the superintendent of a wire mill in Pittsburg.

How did he do it?

He had ability and purpose and grit to begin with. He was strong physically and mentally. Today he weighs 220 pounds and is six feet in height.

And there is grip in his gray matter as in his muscles.

Farrell kept his eyes and ears open even when he engineered his wheelbarrow. And at night—

There is where the boy differentiated himself from his fellows.

At night, while the others spent their minutes in slothful lying in the noxious of Pittsburg, Farrell went to night school. And he read every book about iron and steel he could lay his hands on.

Some of the others found fault with his bookishness, and Farrell had to fight to defend himself.

He could fight. He was Irish.

By and by he was made foreman of his gang. That called for more reading—and fighting.

When he was twenty-three he married, and when he was twenty-five he was superintendent.

You say there is no romance in such a career?

You can see only a tale of worldly plodding, the prosaic struggles of a young Irishman.

Granted the boy sought only to succeed in making money, is there not something between pathos and heroism in the pitting of a poor boy's aspiration against the grim industrial forces about him?

Is there not something fine in his boyish purposes that held fast?

THE POET PHILOSOPHER

(Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams.)
By WALT MASON.

I do not want to buy a sheep, a hay-rack or a ham; I only ask that I may keep my way just as I am. Yet people think they know my SELLERS needs, and try to sell me OF THINGS my bosom bleeds, and why this life seems punk.

The agents stop me on the street, they hammer at my door; they run me down with fire-lance feet, they threaten and implore. I do not want to buy a wheel, a circus or a prize, to jive no salmon on my trail would be a priceless boon. I hate to hear men talk of sales, of profit and of loss; they send me dodgers through the mists, and hope I'll come across; they throw big posters on my porch, and also in the yard; when I go out to smoke a torch, I find me pretty hard. I do not wish to buy a tree, a warthog or a snake; if salesmen would but let me be, my heart would cease to ache. And when I do go forth to buy, with words of shaming cash, I'll hint up men who never try to sell me useless trash. I do not want to buy a trout, a whole of lard, a cured, or have my bank book taken out, or have my life insured.

PRUDENT LOVE MAKING.

Sweet girl, I am thinking of making an offer—in short, to propose; but now a close census I'm taking of the various cues and the cues. 'Tis a critical case to decide on. It calls for discretion and skill; such a suit should be carefully tried on Before one is faced with the bill.

'Tis a lottery, dear, that is certain—Don't toss up your sweet little head; There surely is nothing to hurt in The decision before we are wed. 'The where to marry at leisure. Then hurriedly follow the cues; 'The prudence that follows with pleasure Before 'tis too late to get loose.

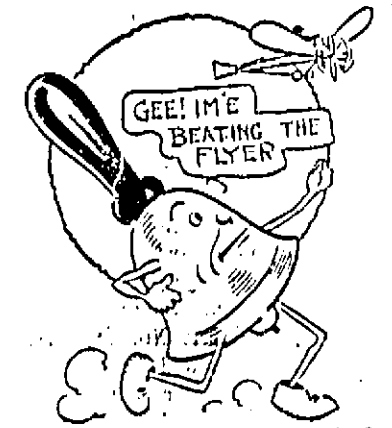

There's a marvelous sweetness in wooing, As pleasant a sport as can be; But when things are past all undoing I fear I might pine to be free. Will you always obey me with meekness? Will you give me no cause to regret? For perhaps in a moment of weakness I may make up my mind to it yet. What's that? You declare you'd not take him?

Your words grieve me much, goodness knows, Is produced a crime? Would you make me know? On it blind when I start to propose? These questions, you see, don't concern you.

Since I'm free to do just as I please, If passionate pleadings will turn you I think I'll go down on my knees.

Interesting Analysis of Snow.

The London Lancet once made an analysis of London snow on a week-day and on a Sunday. The Sunday snow showed roughly a fifth of the amount of impurities present in the weekday snow. But the most significant difference was that while the weekday snow contained as much as 2.36 grains of sulphuric acid in ten pounds the Sunday snow contained practically none.

ROYAL Baking Powder Economy

The manufacturers of Royal Baking Powder have always declined to produce a cheap baking powder at the sacrifice of quality.

Royal Baking Powder is made from pure grape cream of tartar, and is the embodiment of all the excellence possible to be attained in the highest class baking powder.

Royal Baking Powder costs only a fair price, and is more economical at its price than any other leavening agent, because of the superlative quality and absolute wholesomeness of the food it makes.

Mixtures made in imitation of baking powders, but containing alum, are frequently distributed from door to door, or given away in grocery stores. Such mixtures are dangerous to use in food. In England, France, Germany and some sections of the United States their sale is prohibited by law. Alum is a dangerous mineral acid, and all physicians condemn baking powders containing it.

The label of alum baking powders must show the ingredients.

GENERAL BUSINESS WILL NOT SUFFER

Democrats Not to "Run Amuck" on Tariff Issue.

COMMON SENSE IS TO RULE

Leaders Declare But Few Schedules Will Be Revised During Extra Session—Reciprocity to Be Ratified.

Washington, March 9.—Responsible leaders in the senate and house made it plain that it is not the purpose of the Democratic party in the extra session to "run amuck" on the tariff question.

Senator Owen, the new leader of the progressive Democracy in the upper house; Senators Bacon and Overman, and Champ Clark, who is to be speaker, have declared that sanity and common sense will be the rule of action of their party.

Will Ratify Reciprocity Pact.

According to the program these representative men have talked over the reciprocity agreement is to be ratified and those schedules that involve monopoly controlled products and the necessities of life will be revised. The remainder of the session will be left for the regular session. There will be no wholesale revision and no upsetting of business generally. While the reciprocity agreement is under way in the senate the house committee will work out its scheme of revision regarding wool and cotton, woolen and cotton goods, flour, dressed meats and other necessities of life and probably agricultural implements.

The farmer is not to be overlooked. Whatever action the Democrats may take it will compensate the farmer for the free admission of agricultural products from Canada and remove from his shoulders the burden of carrying the entire load of tariff taxation. In return for free farm products from Canada the farmer is to be given either free or at greatly reduced rates the articles he consumes and the implements with which he raises his crops.

General Business Not to Suffer.

The general business interests will not suffer, unless it be the agricultural implement trust. With this kind of a program before them the responsible leaders believe the extra session can be limited to about three months.

"My view is," said Senator Owen, "that we should lower the duties on things the people need to give cheaper prices and then put further revision off to be taken up schedule by schedule in the future. In this way the business interests of the country with but few exceptions will have no occasion to be disturbed. Future revision can be made after we have carefully obtained all the facts."

HOLD PRIMARY; NO VOTE CAST

Shiawassee County (Mich.) Township Established an Odd Record.

Owosso, Mich., March 9.—Woodhull township, Shiawassee county, established a record in the recent judicial primary, when not a single ballot was cast for either Judge S. H. Speaking of Maxims.

The speaker, with an ill concealed sneer, handed this maxim to the sayer: "Some people are so stupid that they are dishonest."

"And by the same token," responded the sayer, with a raw laugh, "some people are so stupid that they are dishonest. Count them up, please, and see, in these days of liberal spending, which side has the majority."—Judge.

HOODOO FOLLOWS GEM

SUIT STARTED TO RECOVER PRICE OF HOPE DIAMOND.

Claimed Edward D. McLean Has Failed to Pay $180,000 for Famous Jewel.

Washington, March 9.—The hoodoo of the Hope diamond which has followed its successive owners since the jewel graced the corsage of the ill-fated Marie Antoinette, has attacked the new owners of the noted bauble, Mrs. Evelyn W. McLean, daughter of the late Thomas F. Walsh, the multimillionaire mine owner of Colorado, and her husband, Edward M. McLean, son of John R. McLean, of Washington and Ohio.

The first evidence of the unpleasant notoriety which is said to radiate from the exquisitely carved gem, to reach its present owners, is shown in a suit filed in the District of Columbia court by L. J. and P. C. Cartier of New York and Paris, to recover the sale price of the stone, $180,000, from Mr. and Mrs. McLean who recently purchased it from them.

The McLeans bought the diamond on January 28. The sale price was announced as $180,000. Of this amount Cartier Bros. accepted an emerald, valued at $26,000, in part payment and the remainder was to be paid in equal installments.

Cartier Bros. claim that the defendants not only failed to pay the stipulated price at the agreed dates, but that the emerald valued at $26,000 was never turned over to them.

Friends of Mr. McLean say that he had never intended to keep the jewel and that on several occasions he offered to return it to the jewellers. They state furthermore that Mrs. McLean has steadfastly refused to wear it.

PARISIAN MUSICAL COMEDY
BY VARSITY STUDENTS

"The Manicure Shop," Original Production, to Be Taken on Road With Cast of 73.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 8.—"The Manicure Shop," a musical comedy by Herbert P. Stothart of the University of Wisconsin school of music, and Theodore Stempfel, '09, Indianapolis, is to be elaborately staged by the Harmsfoot club for a tour with a cast of 73.

The cast as announced today consists of William A. Klezmann, Eau Claire; Floyd B. Carpenter, Madison; John E. Burrell, Chouteau, Mont.; Robert G. Haukoht, Milwaukee; Joseph T. Gallagher, Racine; Maurice C. Pierce, Madison; Louis H. Zollner, Indianapolis, Ind.; Emmott J. Walker, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Burdette I. King, Madison; Walter H. Sherrill, Milwaukee, Wis.; and William Doyle, Chicago, and Rockford, Ill. The Harmsfoot production of last year earned quite a stir when produced in Milwaukee and "The Manicure Shop" is said to be fully equal to "Alpsburg."

"The Manicure Shop" is a comic opera in two acts dealing with Parisian life and customs. For the first time in the history of comic opera the Paris Apaches play the leading parts. The play is a true comic opera and not a musical comedy, as have been all previous Harmsfoot productions.

The music is heavier than that of former years and the dances more difficult.

The dressmaker for the play arrived in Madison today and spent the entire day taking measurements for dresses for the bearded "showgirls." Several of the men have demurred at the idea of wearing hobble skirts but the managers of the play insist that all dresses for the "girls" be strictly up-to-date.

Little Bed-Time Tales By EDITH HAVENS

Playing Newspaper

IT WAS Saturday and the little folks of Park Street were wondering what new game they might play. It seemed as if they had played everything under the sun and it looked like a dull day indeed.

It probably would have been a dull day if at that moment Andrew Buckley had not happened along.

The children were seated on Hazel Haskell's front steps.

"Hello, Andrew," said Bill Smith, as the newcomer came nearer. "We don't know what to play."

"I have just come from the city where my father goes every day and he showed me all over the great newspaper office where he works," replied Andrew as he took a seat on the steps.

"It must have been great," cried Hazel.

"Oh, it was," said Andrew enthusiastically. "Do you know, I am going to be a newspaper man when I grow up."

Suddenly Bill Smith jumped up with a yell. "I have it, let's play newspaper," he shouted. "We will make Andrew the editor and we will have great fun."

"Fine," shouted the others and in a very short time all the plans were made. It was decided to have the office in Hazel's kitchen and with plenty of pencils and paper before them on the kitchen table the fun started.

Mary Clark and Hazel and two of the boys were made reporters at once and away they went to gather news. Bill Smith staid behind in the kitchen with Andrew to draw pictures for the paper.

And how hard they worked. Presently the reporters began to come back with all kinds of news and Andrew started in to print with a pencil on a large sheet of brown wrapping paper.

They called it the Evening Brownie. Oh, it was a fine paper when it was all finished and Bill Smith's pictures added so much to it.

But the best part of it all came that night, when Hazel's father on arriving home brought the first edition for 10 cents.

Wasn't it fun?

They thought it was the best fun they had ever had.

CLOSING OUT SALE OF THE RACKET STORE

Everything Sold At Cost, Many Articles Below Cost.
Stock Positively Must Be Closed Out.
The Sale Of All Sales.

WE speak honestly, we speak within bounds when we emphasize this sale as the sale of all sales. In its economy it overtops any sale ever held under this roof. Every stock in the store is profit stripped; hundreds of items will never reach print, but they are here together with scores of other items that will be so emphasized.

It isn't profit, it isn't cost that causes this great merchandise movement. The one great object is to close out the entire stock owing to the owner's ill health. It's a great chance, it's your great chance; and your proof of wisdom will lie in the taking advantage of it. We're going to crowd this store with satisfied buyers until everything is sold out. You can make no mistake in buying at this sale. Everything included is of first grade quality. Descriptions are difficult, because there are so many things to describe—everything imaginable makes up the stock. Everything is in perfect condition. Everything fills some special need and fills it well. Hundreds of original and individual utilities that will make admirable card prizes are included. Hotel, restaurant and boarding house managers will find much that will interest them, chance which may never well have a repetition.

Getting Moving Pictures of a Bull Fight is Exciting. Fighting bulls are not very uncommon, even to moving picture photographers. There is a series of animated scenes in Layman H. Howe's Travel Festival, which will appear here soon, that demonstrates how our willingly bulls enter into the spirit of picture making.

One of the Howe representatives spent several months in the mountains of Spain making animated scenes of the training of a fighting bull. To make good moving photography of the in-comedian, in his latest singing comedy "A German Prince" will be the attraction at the Myers Theatre Monday evening March 13.

Mr. Wilson has brought several interesting plays to this city in the past, but "A German Prince" is likely to prove his greatest success. The story is a delightful combination of pathos, love and comedy, appropriately punctuated with love songs and yodels. Time has dealt most kindly with Mr. Wilson and his voice still retains the delightful tone expression that it had when he first sang his way into the hearts of that portion of our amusement patrons who admire the style of plays in which he has ever appeared. "A German Prince" is of sufficiently substantial nature to offer opportunity for the quiet and pleasingly touching actions of the star. Of course Mr. Wilson's singing is a feature of the performance, and in the present instance he is supplied with several songs that are admirably suited to his voice, times that are simple but which contain a soft, appealing quality that never fails to capture the popular fancy of the audience. He has a long list of pretty ballads to his credit this season, among which is "My Queen of France," a love song that is sure to be whistled and hummed by all who hear it.

clients that teach Mr. Bull to be furious. It is necessary to be very near him, and the camera man had several torn and shattered suits of clothes to prove his stories of the "playfulness" of the animals.

The photographer was instructed by his office to bring out all the exciting features of the training of an actual bull fight, but keep out all objectionable features.

He did, but with so much danger to himself that Mr. Howe has given him a month's vacation.

Howe's new Travel Festival will be seen at Myers Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, March 15-16, matinee and evening.

FACING A CRISIS

"But, confound it all," insisted the man with the straggly mustache, "I can't whip a child of mine. It's inhuman."

Gunsackon, who shared the other man's seat in the suburban train, regarded him pityingly. "Nonsense!" he said. "A man's got to be the head of his family, hasn't he? How's he going to be that if he shirks responsibility? It's up to him to discipline the children if they're bawling. If they have to be punished it's for you to do that instead of your wife!"

"That's all right," grumbled the man with the straggly mustache. "It's all right to talk, but I've got a tender heart. I can't lick 'em!"

"It isn't your tender heart," said Gunsackon, scornfully. "It's because you're trying to get out of something unpleasant! It's a case of shirking your duty!"

"That's all right to talk," repeated the man with the straggly mustache, darkly, as he got off at his station.

In view of this conversation it was a coincidence that when Gunsackon reached home he was met by Mrs. Gunsackon, wearing a face that spelled a domestic crisis. Somewhere in the dim background of the portures lurked Thomas, the eight-year-old son of the house. From where Thomas lurked came a muffled howl now and then.

"Henry," said Mrs. Gunsackon, giving her husband one of those wireless signals used by women to convey the fact that a crisis must be faced, "I have been waiting for you to get home. Thomas has been a very bad boy, a very bad boy, indeed! He took the telephone all to pieces again, after the talking to that you gave him the other time he did it—and I told him you would punish him."

Gunsackon put on the frown which the occasion demanded. "Come here, Thomas!" he ordered, as he took off his hat and coat. "I'm surprised at you! I'm ashamed that a son of mine—"

"Please, papa," quavered the culprit, as he slowly emerged. His face was red and swollen from preliminary weeping. Gunsackon turned his back on him, harshly.

"This isn't a case for arbitration," he declared. "It isn't as if you didn't know what mischief you were doing, for I'd explained it to you before, Thomas, you deserve a good whipping!"

Gunsackon walked into the living room, pursued by the anticipatory shrieks of his son.

"He really ought to catch it!" murmured Mrs. Gunsackon.

"Yes, indeed!" agreed her husband. "I'm a little surprised—that is, why did you wait till I got home, Harriet? Wouldn't it have proved more effective if you had punished him on the instant?"

"Why, Henry!" exclaimed Mrs. Gunsackon. "I've never whipped Tommy since he was four and had to be spanked! He's too big for me to handle! Anyhow, it will do him more good, coming from you!"

"I suppose so," acknowledged Gunsackon, judicially.

"When—when are you going to do it?" asked his wife, a little tremulously. "I'd rather you'd get it over, and I am sure that Tommy would!"

"Harriet," said Gunsackon, reprovingly, "I thought you knew that a child should never be punished in the heat of anger. Wait till all is calm and then it can be done in cold, even-handed justice."

"Well, it's been several hours since it happened," said his wife, "and I was the one who lost my temper. Still, you can wait till after dinner if you like."

All through the meal an atmosphere of nervous restraint enveloped the Gunsackon table. Tommy, with stifled sobs, made futile dashes at his plate, occasionally raising appealing and pathetic eyes to his father's stern face. Whenever Gunsackon caught one of those glances he frowned harder and took a drink of water. Mrs. Gunsackon was pale and shaky.

After dinner Gunsackon sat down with his paper while the agonized Thomas hung around.

"Henry," said Mrs. Gunsackon, meaningly.

Her husband coughed. "My head aches!" he murmured, as though he had not heard her. "I don't believe I feel very well. I—oh, Thomas! I nearly forgot you! Don't think you are going to escape that punishment. If my head gets better before your bedtime I'll attend to you—if not, the first thing in the morning!"

Gunsackon read amid a strained silence. As eight o'clock approached he was so deeply engrossed that he did not notice his only son's slipping upstairs with the stealth of a burglar.

"What! Tommy gone to bed?" he exclaimed, in great surprise, 15 minutes later. "Well, it's bad to disturb a child that's asleep! I'll attend to him in the morning!"

Gunsackon was just reaching for his hat after a hurried breakfast when, apparently, he remembered the heinousness of his son's offense of the day before. Tommy was still at the table.

"Harriet," said Gunsackon, clearing his throat, "I'm afraid I haven't time to attend to Tommy. I'll leave him in your hands. You needn't whip him unless you think best. Er—a good talking to will be plenty. He's old enough and smart enough to understand. A man is apt to be too hard. You can do it lots better. I've got to rush for my train."

God's Covenant of the Law

By PASTOR RUSSELL
of Brooklyn Tabernacle

TEXT—The Lord whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to his temple, even the Messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in, said Jehovah of Hosts; but who may abide by the day of his coming?—Malachi III, 16.

Six thousand years ago in Eden our Maker, in justly sentencing his disobedient children to death, intimated that ultimately the seed of the woman would bruise the serpent's head. This hidden promise was the first intimation of the divine mercy which our gracious Creator purposed in himself from before the foundation of the world. Ever noble, kind and gracious, our Creator restrained his mercy for the good of his creatures—that they might learn to appreciate the exceeding sinfulness of sin. For the good of the angels also, and that they might fully know of his justice, as well as of his wisdom and power, God insisted upon dealing with his creatures from the standpoint of exact justice. They had sinned and thereby had forfeited all claim upon the eternal life which he had given them conditionally.

Eternal torment, as we have already seen, did not in any sense or degree enter into the divine intention. His sentence upon man, plainly stated, was, "Dying thou shalt die," not, "Living thou shalt live in torment." "The soul that sinneth it shall die" (Genesis II, 17; Ezekiel XVIII, 4). God intended to exemplify in his dealings with our race a principle of divine government to be made operative everywhere—ultimately among all his creatures on the spirit plane, as well as upon the earthly.

Israel's experiences of tribulation and bondage in Egypt were probably necessary to prepare them for God's great proposition—that they should keep the law and as a reward have life everlasting. As it is written, "He that doeth things shall live by them" (Leviticus XVIII, 5). Israel greatly rejoiced in this manifestation of divine preference for them more than for all others of humanity. The law covenant was mediated. The sacrifice of bulls and of goats made a typical atonement for them for a year, so that they might enter into the covenant relationship with God. But when they attempted to keep the law they were disappointed. They failed. The law of God being the full measure of a perfect man's ability, and the Jews, like other men, being imperfect, found that they had undertaken an impossibility.

Not a Jew kept the law perfectly. Not a Jew, therefore, gained eternal life during the first year. But God, foreknowing this, had made preparation for a repetition of the atonement day every year, so that the people might continue striving to attain eternal life. Year after year, century after century, they failed, and discouragement took the place of hope. God was teaching them a great lesson respecting the need of better sacrifices than those of bulls and of goats, and also teaching them that there is no other means of justification in his sight. They got blessings under the covenant—educational blessings, but not the blessings hoped for, not life eternal. Hence they were not in a position to become, as they had hoped, a national Messiah, a national seed of Abraham, for the blessing of all the nations.

The first-begotten of the Father, as his glorious agent in the great work of creation, had the honor granted him of becoming the great messenger of the covenant, the great prophet, priest and king of Israel, the great Michael of Daniel XII, 1. But there were tests connected with his attainment of this high position: (1) By faith he must lay aside his heavenly glory, in obedience to the Father's will to become a man—not a sinful man, but a perfect man—holy, harmless, undivided, separate from sinners. (2) Thus prepared to become the Redeemer it was his privilege to make full consecration of his earthly interest and the Father's pleasure to bestow upon him the spirit of the Father's will to become a man on the highest plane. For three and a half years his sacrifice burned upon the altar. It was indeed better than the sacrifice of bulls and goats, for it was a corresponding price for Adam; an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth; a man's life for a man's life. (3) When Jesus had thus sacrificially parted with his earthly life he experienced a resurrection change from human nature to spiritual, like what he was originally, only higher and more glorious. Thus he was at once both a sacrifice and the spirit-begotten priest who offered that sacrifice.

Then why did he not at once begin his great work as prophet, priest, king and new covenant mediator for Israel and through Israel for the world? It was because there was to be more than one sacrifice in the divine plan on the day of atonement. When this bride class shall have completed her sacrifice in and under the merit of the great priest, then every arrangement for the blessing of Israel as Abraham's seed and of all nations through Israel will have forthwith commenced. Thus seen the revelation of Israel's great messenger of the new covenant is very important not only to the Jew, but also to the world of mankind, who must receive their blessings under Israel by a compliance with the same new law covenant.

Births and Deaths at Sea.
For every birth occurring at sea there are about 16 deaths.

PLAGUE IN CHINA—Typical Chinese street scene, where hogs are the only scavengers. It is such conditions as these that the doctors have to contend with in fighting the plague in China. Utter disregard for the principles of sanitation, largely through ignorance of the disease, spreads the disease rapidly. Dr. Pozzi, one of the European experts on germ diseases who has been sent to China to combat the spread of the plague, terms such places as here pictured, "a veritable paradise for plague germs." It is cleaned only by the pigs, who roam about at will and eat the garbage.

VEILED AGAINST GERMS.

Railroad officials in "plague-ridden" Chinese district. Every precaution is being taken among the educated classes in China to guard against the spread of the plague. For instance, the regulations imposed on the Japanese postoffice in Manchuria provide for the fumigation of mail bags. Doctors, railroad officials, sanitary officials and all whose duties call them to work in the afflicted areas wear white shrouds like garments and have their faces covered with veils soaked in iodine form.

The Servant Question.
It was a Kingston, Ontario, woman who recently sized up one feature of the servant girl question in a new way. She said: "I got a girl to relieve me of physical fatigue, and soon I got rid of her to relieve me of mental fatigue."

Fears the Worst.
A woman who had a pond on her property, which was out of sight and stop, played a deal of interest. About the average crop.

His Salary.
"Is your young man getting a salary?" "Sure he is. An' what's his?" "He's got a salary of $100 a week." "That's fine! How much is he getting now?" "I dunno what he's getting now, but I spects he's somethin' like half what he's gwine to get."

No Chance for Fraud.
The German postal authorities have decreed that in the future, whenever an employee asks for a blue pencil, he must first present the stamp of the old one, as a guarantee against fraud.

However, is Collected in Many of The Rural Districts.

Poll taxes in the city of Janesville are a thing of memory only now, the collection of this form of tax from those who are given the right of franchise having been discontinued since 1893. There is, however, on the state statute books a law, requiring that every man between the ages of twenty-five and fifty years, who is not exempted as being a policeman, fireman, or one who has ever served in the army navy, national guard or other military bodies, shall pay a tax of one dollar into the city treasury. The law, as far as its execution goes, no longer exists, having proved a huge farce. Evading of paying the tax is easy and the penalty for conviction in case of non-payment is only $5, while the costs of the action in case any arrests were made, would exceed the amount of the tax.

In many ways the tax was unjust. Practically the only way of collecting it was from property owners, adding it to the amount assessed on their property. Outside of resort to litigation, which was unprofitable, there was no method of collecting the money if a man chose not to pay it.

The theory of the tax was that all men should pay for their rights of citizenship of the city government. It was contemplated that the tax would dignify a man's position in the community as a voter, putting him on a level with all others under the government.

The method of taxation in use in this city was that the city clerk should file with the common council the names of all eligible voters, and the city fathers would then order the payment of the taxes. At numerous difficulties arose in securing a correct list of the men who would be required to pay for their privileges as citizens of the municipality, and it was deemed best to discontinue it.

Similar action to that of Janesville's has been taken in nearly all of the cities and towns of the state. In some country districts, the practice still prevails, the men of the township either paying money or giving the equivalent in labor on the roads, which is to their interest in improving the community.

G. W. Loyda, secretary of the Evansville Commercial club, offered on the part of the organization he represented, to provide all funds necessary to equip the city hall building in readiness for the use of the school, provided the city would tender the property. The council took action in the matter and accepted the proposition. An invitation will be extended to the committee to inspect the property and canvas the local situation when a favorable report is expected.

A German Poster.

That the German authorities can so far unbend as to propound condemnations is only another proof of how little we know our Teutonic relations. In the census papers now being distributed, however, they ask: "If you do not know the date of your birth, how many years old are you?" Which is more humorous and at least an intelligible as "Why is a mouse when it spins?"—London Black and White.

EFFORTS MADE TO RELIEVE FAMILY

Ladies of City, Headed By Mrs. Floyd Murdock, Making Arrangements To Take Care of Boyce Family.

Through the efforts of interested citizens of Janesville, attempts are being made to relieve the sufferings of the Boyce family, who are homeless and practically destitute as the result of the fire in which little Hazel Boyce was burned to death. Articles of furniture are needed and Mrs. Floyd Murdock, assisted by a number of other ladies, have taken charge of the work. Through their efforts a house in the neighborhood has been secured for the family and a request is made for furniture and bedding for the unfortunate family. Any articles, however, which will be taken to the Murdock home at 103 North Franklin street, will be delivered to the Boyces tomorrow.

HONEST CONFESION

A Doctor's Talk on Food.

There are no finer set of men on earth than the doctors, and when they find they have been in error they are usually apt to make honest and manly admission of the fact.

A case in point is that of a practitioner, one of the good old school, who lives in Texas. His plain, unvarnished tale needs no dressing up:

"I had always had an intense prejudice, which I can now see was unwarrantable and unreasonable, against all much advertised foods. Hence, I never read a line of the many 'ads' of Grape-Nuts, nor tested the food till last winter.

"While in Corpus Christi for my health, and visiting my youngest son, who has four of the roughest, healthiest little boys I ever saw, I ate my first dish of Grape-Nuts food for supper with my first grandsons.

"I became exceedingly fond of it and have eaten a package of it every week since, and find it a delicious, refreshing and strengthening food, leaving no ill effects whatever, causing no eruptions (with which I was formerly much troubled), no sense of fullness, nausea, nor distress of stomach in any way.

"There is no other food that agrees with me so well, or sits so lightly or pleasantly upon my stomach as this does.

"I am stronger and more active since I began the use of Grape-Nuts than I have been for 10 years, and am no longer troubled with nausea and indigestion." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

UNION MEETING OF THE BROTHERHOODS PROVES A SUCCESS

About 300 Men From All Denominations Gather At Baptist Church For Union of Brotherhoods.

Good speeches, good things to eat and a spirit of co-operative good feeling characterized the combined meeting of all the men's clubs of the different churches, held in the parlors of the Baptist church last evening. A beautiful chicken pie supper was served, and the ladies of that church, of which about three hundred of the members of the various brotherhoods partook. During the supper, proceeds of which, Rev. John Reynolds offered prayer, music was furnished by the Baptist church orchestra. This was of especial merit and drew forth hearty applause from the listeners.

Prof. L. P. Rahr presided over the speaking as lastmaster in a very pleasing manner. George A. Jacobs was the first speaker and his subject was "Relationship of the Brotherhood to the Church."

Mr. Jacobs spoke of the wonderful results of the church brotherhoods since their first organization, telling of the cause and the means of their growth. Through the idea that the church in life is financial independence, the respect for the Sabbath and the keeping of this day holy has fallen off. The overcoming of these tendencies is the duty of the brotherhoods.

The next speaker, C. J. Hendricks, spoke on "Our Brotherhood Duty to Our City." He praised Janesville as a good place in which to live and told of its various advantages. He said that there were evils in our midst which it was the duty of every member of the church and city to do away with. He laid special emphasis on the saloon laws and the fact that through the saloon, all citizens had a means of showing their alienation from their duty. Mr. Hendricks closed with an appeal for co-operation among the members of the various churches in making for a better Janesville.

After a few volunteer remarks by J. A. Craig, in which he commented very strongly on the work of the law makers at Madison, Rev. J. W. Laughlin addressed the gathering on "The National Brotherhood Movement." He showed the universal movement along these lines and told of the conditions in other countries. He said that the same truth seeking that prompted the Protestant reformation brought about the organization of these brotherhoods for the uplifting of social and economic conditions. He said the desire of Christ that men should think for themselves and any move in that direction was for the best.

After an informal discussion and a declaration that these March union meetings should be made a regular thing, the meeting was brought to a close.

BROKEN STEERING GEAR CAUSES AUTO SMASH-UP ON MILWAUKEE STREET

Car 30 Belonging To J. L. Harvey in Need of Repair Today From Accident Last Night.

With one front wheel demolished and with other parts badly in need of repair, the Cole car belonging to J. L. Harvey in a narrow alley, as the result of a collision with the brick wall in front of the Meyers residence on 12 Milwaukee street about 12:00 clock last night, following a derangement of the steering apparatus. Fortunately Mr. Harvey was the sole occupant of the car, was unharmed, owing to the fact that the car was not going at a great rate of speed. The car had just recently been put into shape for the season.

Help for the Machinist.

The machinist who uses slapper and milling machines knows the difficulty when making small parts of squaring thin pieces on account of the trouble encountered in setting the piece squarely while tightening the vice. To escape these trials, take a piece of thin steel of proper length and breadth, harden and magnetize. Place this against the fixed jaw of the vice and it will adhere firmly. When the work is brought in contact with it, the small piece will also adhere and the vice can be clamped to the best advantage. The face of the magnetized strip should be kept free of chips and should be recharged frequently.

SECOND OF SERIES OF LECTURES GIVEN

Hon. Ed. L. Kelly Spoke Last Night At St. Mary's Hall On "Why Pope Is A Prisoner In Rome."

Under the auspices of Carroll Council, Knights of Columbus, the second of a series of lectures was given last evening at St. Mary's new hall, Hon. Ed. L. Kelly being the speaker of the evening. His subject was "Why the Pope is a Prisoner in Rome."

Previous to the lecture a short musical program was rendered. The vespers choir gave the opening number, "The Merry Mountaineers," and Len. Matthews sang "Just For Today." Mrs. George Welch furnishing the piano accompaniment. A pleasing violin solo was rendered by Harry O'Brien, Miss Nell Farley accompanying him on the piano. This was followed with a chorus by the vespers choir, "Queen of the Stars," and the speaker was introduced.

The removal of the temporal power of the papacy was stated by Mr. Kelly as the reason for the heads of the Catholic church confining themselves so closely to the Vatican. The history of the church when the Pope ruled the people of Italy was outlined, the anking of Rome by the Sarlatians being declared the greatest blow to religion. The loss of power, said Mr. Kelly, had hindered the church in its work, although the present Pope has made his request for temporal power urgent. The restriction of the Pope by one nation, Mr. Kelly said, hindered the spiritual work of the church among humanity. The speaker held that the church should not be governed by the laws of any one country but free to act on its own initiative.

BARKER'S CORNERS.

Barker's Corners, March 8.—Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Russell entertained company from Chicago, Sunday.

Mabel Simmons fell on Monday and had the misfortune to break her limb. Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Barker of the city were Monday visitors at Charles Shoemaker's.

Stuart Alverson moved onto the Taylor farm the first of the week.

Mrs. Frank McDermott is confined to her home with her leg.

Wm. Shoemaker shipped stock to Chicago the first of the week.

Mrs. Hugh Hemmings spent a few days last week at Monroe with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Bogardus and Miss Ingle of the city spent Sunday at the Chas. Davis home.

Mrs. James Caldwell and son were Tuesday visitors at the home of L. Hubble.

Hamilton's Midnight Oil.

Men who serve their countries faithfully have, in many instances, been forced thereby to neglect their own and their families' interests; or, at least, their energies are severely overtaxed. Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton, in his biography of his grandfather, Alexander Hamilton, gives a colored Frenchman's observation.

His studious tastes and habits drew forth the famous comment of Talleyrand, who one night, passed Hamilton's window and found him at work. He wrote later:

"I have seen a man who made the fortune of a nation laboring all night to support his family."—Youth's Companion.

Coffins Too Small for Him.

After literally sleeping his life away for 33 years, John Turner, Washington's giant, seven feet seven inches tall, was hampered in death as in life by his size, and his undertakers could not find a coffin in all Washington large enough to fit him. One had to be made in Baltimore of these amazing proportions: Eight feet long, two and a half feet wide and one and a half feet deep.

Mixed.

An old lady and her daughter stopped outside the Lyceum theater to study the announcement concerning the pantomime. "Who's the gal as plays the lover?" asked the old lady. "Jane Eyre," replied the daughter. "Jane Eyre?" exclaimed the old lady in amazement. "Well, what part, for goodness sake, does East Lynne play?"—London Opinion.

DAILY DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN Food Specialist

ATE QUAIL A DAY FOR 32 DAYS ON WAGER.

George Razakies of Chicago finished eating thirty-two quail in thirty-two days December 7, won a wager of $700, and offered to eat thirty-two more in the next thirty-two days for $1,000. The danger, or impossibility, of eating one article of food continually is altogether imaginary.

Quail, or any other animal food, is inappropriate as a steady diet for man, who is not carnivorous, but almost any single non-flesh food that contains all the elements of nutrition in nearly the same proportion as they are found in the blood, is far superior to the ordinary mixed diet. The infant can live best for three years on a milk monodiet, and the average man could live a hundred years on whole wheat bread alone.

The adoption of the monodiet approximately would largely abolish sickness, then it would solve the course dinner and solve the servant problem. Efficiency, mental and physical, would be doubled, and the cost of living would be reduced one-half, but quail on toast, champagne, pie and cake and all superfluous dishes would be eliminated. Disease would be largely eliminated, including cancer, whose essential physical cause I have proved to be the disorganization of nutrition and consequently of cell proliferation, under certain favorable circumstances.

How Chinese Paint.

Nearly all the painting in the foreign settlements and all in the Chinese cities is done by native workmen with Chinese paint. The use of Chinese material and labor is because of cheapness, although a piece of work never has a finished appearance.

Most of the work is done by the painter taking a bunch of cotton waste, which he saturates by dipping in the paint pot and then rubbing it over the surface to be painted. Even if foreign brushes are furnished the Chinese painter will not use them. He says he saves paint by his method and gets it more evenly distributed over the surface. On exterior surfaces the Chinese paint is not durable, but the coat is so small that the job can be done two or three times for what one painting would cost in America.

To Cool Ship's Magazines.

Considerable attention continues to be given to the cooling of magazines on board naval vessels. Various types of refrigerating apparatus have been examined by the ordnance experts. Famous English Parish.

In addition to its altar population, bygone Stepney was credited with a large number of the citizens of other towns on account of the current notion that all children born at sea belonged to the parish of Stepney, a notion probably due to the large number of sailors who lived there. Paupers who had been born at sea were gravely sent to Stepney from all parts of the country, and from time to time the law courts had to be called upon to decide against their claims.—London Chronicle.

All claims against Chicago L. Gilbert and Co., deceased.
All claims against Chicago L. Gilbert

The Honorable Senator Sagebrush

By FRANCIS LYNDE

Copyright, 1910, by Street & Smith

"Reasonably so in the preaching, since that depended solely upon me. As to the other, I don't know. Sometimes I think the housecleaners are honestly at work, and at other times I am afraid they are putting up a front only to deceive me. Some time perhaps I may tell you how far I have had to go into the 'practical politics' armory to get my weapons."

"And your father, Evan—are you coming to understand him any better?"

He shook his head despondently. "No, or, rather, yes. I am afraid I am coming to understand him or his methods only too well. The only way we can keep from quarreling now is to banish politics when we are together."

"I am sorry," she said, and the sorrow was emphatic in her tone. "As I have said before, you don't understand him. You are judging him by standards which, however just and true they may be, are peculiarly your own standards. I know you can be broad for others when you try. Can't you be broad for him?"

It was good to hear her defend his father. It was what he would have wished his wife to do. Suddenly there arose within him a huge reluctance to lessen or to weaken in any way her trust in David Blount.

"Let us say that the fault is mine," he said hastily. "God forbid that I should be the means of making you think less of him in any respect!"

"He is simply a grand old man—the first I have ever known for whom the backhanded phrase seemed to have been made," she asserted warmly. "If he has faults I am sure they are nothing more than gigantic virtues, the faults of a man who is too strong to be little in any way."

With Patricia in town, the "silver-tongued apollonian" of Quereiro Mesa, as the Daily Capital called the new division counsel, would have been glad to evade some of the speaking appointments, but as his engagements had been made for some days in advance he was obliged to go.

On his return to the capital he was delighted to find the party of three still occupying the private dining room suit in the Inter-Mountain. Arriving on the morning train, he was permitted to make the party of three a party of four at the breakfast table.

Later, however, when he went to his offices in the Temple court building the stenographer asserted themselves again with somewhat startling emphasis. Though he found his desk closed and was reasonably sure that he had in his own possession the only key that would unlock it, he found his papers scattered in confusion under the roll top and the letters and telegrams which had come during his absence opened. A touch of the electric button brought the stenographer from the anteroom.

"Who's been in my desk, Collins?" he demanded, pointing to the confusion and scrutinizing the face of the young man for signs of guilt.

"Goodness gracious! I don't know," was the instant reply, and Blount concluded that the secretary was either innocent or an astonishingly good actor. "I have been putting the mail and telegrams through the letter slot, as you directed, and I've kept the private office locked."

"Nevertheless," said Blount, "it is very evident that somebody has been here." Then he had a sudden shock. "What did you do with that packet of papers I gave you last Monday and told you to put in the safe?"

"I did just what you told me to—put it in the cash box and put the key of the cash box on your desk. Didn't you get it?"

Blount felt in his pockets and found the key.

"Get the packet and bring it to me," he directed, giving the stenographer the key to the inner compartment of the safe.

It was not more than a minute later, while he was attempting to bring order out of the confusion on his desk, that a sudden prompting led him to go quickly to the door of the outer office. Snapping it open with a jerk, he caught the clerk in the act of untying the string which bound the thick packet of papers together.

"What are you doing? Why don't you bring it to me?" he called angrily. "There were still no signs of guilt in Collins' face."

"I was just going to make sure that it was the same package," he said innocently, handing it over at once.

With the packet in an inside pocket of his coat, Blount put on his hat, and himself shot down the elevator and a few minutes afterward was renting a private box in the deposit vaults of a bank in the next street. When he returned to his office another touch of the electric button summoned Collins.

"Sit down," said Blount, indicating a chair. "I have been reasonably kind to you, haven't I, Fred?"

"Yes, sir; very kind indeed," was the clerk's admission.

"Yet you have let some one bring you to be disloyal to me," was the direct charge. "Who was it, Collins?"

"I don't know anything about it, Mr. Blount. If I was going to die the next minute I couldn't say anything different."

"You've got to say something different."

ent if you want to stay with me," said the master decisively. "Did you know what was in that package you put in the safe?"

"No."

"Yet you said you were untying it to see if it were the same package I gave you last Monday. You are lying to me, Collins. You opened my desk to hunt for the key of the cash box. Sit tight in the box. I'm not going to fire you. I merely want to know who hired you to do this."

"If I did it I must have done it in my sleep," was all the reply the young man would make, and after trying a threat or two Blount dismissed him.

This was the first of a series of incidents all pointing toward the same conclusion—that some one was evidently determined to let him have no privacy in his correspondence. Unless he happened to be present when the mail was brought in it was pretty sure to show signs plainly indicating that it had been tampered with.

Blount could think of only one explanation, and he accepted it without question. The machine of which his father was the dictator had no conscience.

Some of its spies, doubtless working under instructions given by his father, were keeping tabs on him, and the purpose of the spies was easily guessed. His statement made to his father across the dinner table in the Inter-Mountain cafe had not been an empty boast. The packet safely put away in the bank's deposit vault contained affidavits, sworn statements, evidences of fraud, and there were enough of them fully to substantiate everything he had said.

That evening there was a reception given by Mrs. Irving Gordon, wife of the reform candidate for governor, and Blount went, hoping that Patricia would be there. She was there, and the young man, in need of a confidant, wasted two good hours trying to get private speech with her. When his chance came it was only a half chance, since there was little privacy to be had in the crowded room.

"It is a question of conscience this time," he told her when she had agreed to sit out a dance with him in one corner of the canvas carpeted assembly room. "I have discovered positive evidence of frauds to be perpetrated in the election next Tuesday. How far am I justified in suppressing this evidence?"

"Mercy!" she exclaimed. "How you can bring a thunderbolt down upon one out of a perfectly clear sky! Is it ever right to shield criminals or criminals?"

"What are you doing? Why don't you bring it to me?" he called angrily. "There were still no signs of guilt in Collins' face."

"I was just going to make sure that it was the same package," he said innocently, handing it over at once.

"I have discovered positive evidence of frauds to be perpetrated in the election next Tuesday. How far am I justified in suppressing this evidence?"

"Mercy!" she exclaimed. "How you can bring a thunderbolt down upon one out of a perfectly clear sky! Is it ever right to shield criminals or criminals?"

"What are you doing? Why don't you bring it to me?" he called angrily. "There were still no signs of guilt in Collins' face."

"I was just going to make sure that it was the same package," he said innocently, handing it over at once.

With the packet in an inside pocket of his coat, Blount put on his hat, and himself shot down the elevator and a few minutes afterward was renting a private box in the deposit vaults of a bank in the next street. When he returned to his office another touch of the electric button summoned Collins.

"Sit down," said Blount, indicating a chair. "I have been reasonably kind to you, haven't I, Fred?"

"Yes, sir; very kind indeed," was the clerk's admission.

"Yet you have let some one bring you to be disloyal to me," was the direct charge. "Who was it, Collins?"

"I don't know anything about it, Mr. Blount. If I was going to die the next minute I couldn't say anything different."

"You've got to say something different."

"No."

"Yet you said you were untying it to see if it were the same package I gave you last Monday. You are lying to me, Collins. You opened my desk to hunt for the key of the cash box. Sit tight in the box. I'm not going to fire you. I merely want to know who hired you to do this."

"If I did it I must have done it in my sleep," was all the reply the young man would make, and after trying a threat or two Blount dismissed him.

This was the first of a series of incidents all pointing toward the same conclusion—that some one was evidently determined to let him have no privacy in his correspondence. Unless he happened to be present when the mail was brought in it was pretty sure to show signs plainly indicating that it had been tampered with.

Blount could think of only one explanation, and he accepted it without question. The machine of which his father was the dictator had no conscience.

Some of its spies, doubtless working under instructions given by his father, were keeping tabs on him, and the purpose of the spies was easily guessed. His statement made to his father across the dinner table in the Inter-Mountain cafe had not been an empty boast. The packet safely put away in the bank's deposit vault contained affidavits, sworn statements, evidences of fraud, and there were enough of them fully to substantiate everything he had said.

That evening there was a reception given by Mrs. Irving Gordon, wife of the reform candidate for governor, and Blount went, hoping that Patricia would be there. She was there, and the young man, in need of a confidant, wasted two good hours trying to get private speech with her. When his chance came it was only a half chance, since there was little privacy to be had in the crowded room.

"It is a question of conscience this time," he told her when she had agreed to sit out a dance with him in one corner of the canvas carpeted assembly room. "I have discovered positive evidence of frauds to be perpetrated in the election next Tuesday. How far am I justified in suppressing this evidence?"

Daily Science Talk

By FREDERIC CAMPBELL,
President Department of Astronomy,
Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences.

THE NEW YEAR.

What is there scientifically in the dating of the opening of a new year at Jan. 1? What happens in the heavens or on the earth that the new year should begin just then? The answer is, "Nothing." Jan. 1 is an arbitrary date. The new year of other races begins with other dates.

It is a fact, however, that about that time certain things happen which may have had their influence in fixing a date so near. Dec. 21 is the winter solstice. At that time the sun reaches its greatest southern declination, shadows at noon are the longest of the year, days are shortest, nights are longest and, astronomically speaking, winter begins.

Again, about the 24 or 25 of January—a date still nearer—the earth makes its nearest approach to the sun, thus happily modifying the cold of our northern winters, though intensifying that of the southern six months later. We are then 3,250,000 miles nearer the sun than in July, and in an average distance of 93,000,000 miles, is so great as actually to give the sun a larger measurement in winter than in summer.

The measuring of time and production of a workable calendar must have been an immense problem to early man before astronomy had brought an accurate knowledge of the movements of the heavenly bodies. For man the simplest celestial movements are those of the rising and setting of the sun, and he could not be long in discovering that the length and direction of shadows were good markers of time; hence the sundial springing up and was widely used until clocks and watches were invented. Even now sundials are regarded their popularity, though more for ornament than for utility.

Eventually an annual movement of the stars was discerned, which proved to be merely the annual journey of the earth around the sun. This determined 365 1/4 days as constituting our year. On the planet Mars this would be multiplied by 2, on Jupiter by 12, on Saturn by 30, on Uranus by 81 and on Neptune by 164.

Valuable Coconut.

In Zanzibar island there grows a coconut which has only a very thin layer of meat, being entirely filled with milk; this furnishes the natives drink, both before and after fermentation.

But for a long time after the post-midnight quiet had settled down upon the hostelry he lay wide awake, wrestling with this newest problem which had risen up to confront him, for now there was no longer any doubt in his mind that the long arm of the machine was reaching out for him personally and that sooner or later it must come to a life and death grapple.

The Child and the Telephone.

A child should be taught as early as possible to call at least one telephone number, a neighbor, father's place of business, or physician. I taught our little boy, who is just three, to call a neighbor's number, and twice have found it useful, once when taken very ill, and again having burned my arm badly. He was able to call and receive immediate assistance.—Harper's Bazar.

Farmland Road Improvement

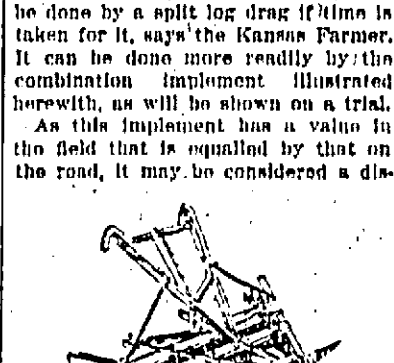

HANDY IMPLEMENT ON ROADS

May Be Considered Distinct Improvement Over Split Log Drag and Harrow—Useful on Farm.

We recently visited a model farm and one of the most attractive features about it was the condition in which the roads, both on the farm and the adjacent highway, were kept by use of the split-log drag. This is a matter of real economy, as well as of good looks. A visit to another farm showed a modified device which we had never seen used elsewhere, and which is the invention of the owner. It is so effective that a drawing of it is shown herewith. It is really a combination of harrow and split log drag.

The harrow teeth are attached in such a manner that they can be let down and the implement used as a harrow only, or the teeth can be raised and the implement used as a drag only. If the teeth are set level with the bottom of the drag, it forms an excellent road crusher, and its weight is such that it can be nicely handled with an ordinary farm team. There are certain roads which require a good deal of whipping into shape before they become good dirt roads. This work can be done by a split log drag if time is taken for it, says the Kansas Farmer. It can be done more readily by the combination implement illustrated herewith, as will be shown on a trial.

As this implement has a value in the field that is equalled by that on the road, it may be considered a disinct improvement over both the ordinary split log drag and the harrow. The drawing is sufficiently plain to show the method of construction, and the cost for the iron attachments for holding the teeth need not be great. The teeth of course can be set in a wooden frame, though they are less satisfactory so, because less readily adjustable. This implement has been used on the farm where it was made for a number of years and has been found equally effective in the field or on the road.

Feeling a Part

By REGINALD D. HAVEN

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"I never did but one good act in my life," said the old counterfeiter. "There wasn't much credit in it to me, but it was productive of a lot of happiness to others. It occurred many years ago, and as I am now a very old man and have a very long, troubled life to look back upon, including several terms in the penitentiary, it stands out from the rest of my acts in odd contrast."

"It was in the summer of 1850 that several of us got together in a northern city and manufactured a number of twenty dollar counterfeit bills. As soon as we had finished the job we destroyed the outfit, divided the bills and started for different parts of the country to put them out on the public, my section being the south. Handling one of the creek steamers of that day, I started for New Orleans. In order the better to impose on people I dressed myself in ministerial black and wore a white cravat. I had been an actor and could personate a clergyman, or any one else, for that matter, to perfection."

"The main cabin of the steamers running on the Mississippi river in those days, when the table was not set for meals, was occupied principally for gambling. Poker, seven-up, euchre and other games were played, though the parties playing were not large and of ten two persons only occupied a table. I was sitting on the guards one day when a negro came out of the cabin, wringing his hands."

"What's the matter, boy?" I asked. "Mars' done gone lose me to a nigger trader. Ma wife an' p'ckuninles won't n'gher see me no mo'."

"I found that his master, a planter, had taken him to Cairo as his body servant, was returning, had lost all the money he had with him at cards, staked his dinky and lost him too. I went into the cabin, where the planter and the trader were sitting up, the planter being at the moment occupied in making out a bill of sale for the slave."

"I beg your pardon, sir," I said to the planter. "On account of my vocation I am opposed, of course, to gambling in any form, but I dislike exceedingly the separation of families. I understand that you have lost your negro. I would be pleased to lend you the money to win him back."

"The gentleman accepted the offer. I brought out some new, crisp bills, just from the press, and the game started anew. It was encore. I soon saw that the gambler could go on winning from the trader all day if he liked, for the former was perpetrating one of the commonest tricks on him—that is, "turning jack." In other words, when he dealt he would always turn up a knave for himself. Seeing this and other cheating, I interfered. I told him that I had learned the game before becoming a clergyman and insisted on taking the planter's place. Since I was backing the latter he was obliged to yield to me in the matter, which he did with a bad grace."

"I had not only learned the game before becoming a clergyman," but all the tricks that went with it and many other games. I walked into that card sharper in a way that opened his eyes. The negro at stake had followed me into the cabin and was standing watching the game with bulging eyes. It was hard for me to keep a straight face, playing as I was, a supposed minister of the gospel, with counterfeit money and doing us neat bits of timbering as had ever been practiced on that palatial steamboat. The negro trader was not a professional card sharper, though he didn't hesitate to cheat the planter, and never dreamed that the number man before him in a spotless white necktie was placing the cards exactly where he wanted them."

"Of course I soon won the dinky for his master. Then I arose from the table, delivered a homily on the sin of gambling and returned to the guards. I was followed by the planter, who said to me:

"Pe'mit me, suh, to say to yo' that yo're the first man of the cloth that has ever obtained my unbounded respect, suh. Yo' have saved my boy, suh, from being separated from his wife and children, an act fo' which I would have been to blame. I have sufficient influence, suh, to control a call to the First Baptist church of Mississippi. If yo' will accept it it shall be yo's with a fat salary."

"I thanked the gentleman for his offer, but declined it. When we reached his landing he insisted so heartily upon my visiting him at his plantation that I consented."

"I was made welcome by his family, and the wife and children of the negro I had saved from the trader came to the house with tears in their eyes to thank me. I was a good looking young fellow in those days and could see that I made an impression on one of the planter's daughters. I had everything at my disposal to perpetrate any insanity I might choose. I could get the planter's endorsement, which would enable me to dispose of my 'green goods,' and I believed I could win his daughter."

"I did neither. For a brief season I enjoyed the sensation of being a fine fellow. During that time I permitted myself to feel the part just as an actor will feel the character he is personating. Then when it was over I departed, resisting with difficulty the reproachful look of the girl who favored me, and as soon as I was on another boat was again a dog of a counterfeiter."

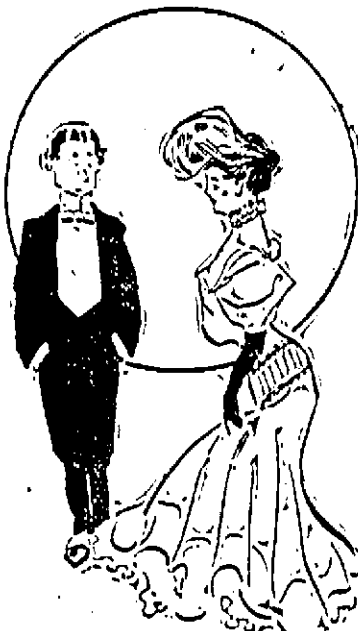

Oh, Sugar!
"Sweet little feet," is not poetic, At least not altogether, since we have learned the trusts are put 'Ting glucose in leather."

TO FIGHT FOR MAYORALTY HONORS IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, Ill.—The fight for mayoralty honors threatens to be one of the most bitterly contested battles of recent years in Chicago politics. Both Prof. Charles E. Merriam, republican nominee, and Carter H. Harrison, democratic nominee, are strong, able leaders.

Professor Merriam has made a life study of civic politics and has acted on commissions and boards in the interests of better civic government.

Carter Harrison needs no introduction to Chicago voters, having already held office of mayor from 1897 to 1905. He is the son of the late H. H. Harrison, five times mayor of Chicago, who was assassinated on October 8, 1893.

TO MAKE A WIRE STRETCHER

Tool Shown in Illustration Will Hold All Kinds of Wire and Will Also Pull Bolts.

A wire stretcher made as shown in the accompanying sketch will prove a very useful tool, as it will hold all kinds of wire and can also be employed for pulling bolts, if they are easily accessible, writes J. N. Hagley of Webster, Kan., in the Popular Mechanics. The handle, A, is forged from 1/2 by 1 1/2-in. stock and should be about 18 in. long. Shape it as shown, and drill a hole for a 1/2-in. bolt or rivet at the upper end. The upper part B is made of the same material and is shaped with an offset as shown. This offset allows the pressure at the post to be in line with the handle, thus preventing the tool from having a tendency to turn in the hand. The roller C is 1/2 in. thick and 1 1/2 in. in diameter and is also attached with a 1/2-

And the Others

Simply stated, there are just TWO KINDS of Centrifugal Cream Separators, the improved DE LAVAL of today and the dozen other "copies," "imitations," "substitutes," "just-as-good" and "near" separators, some a little cheaper made and more inferior than the others but all merely utilizing one or another of the expired DE LAVAL patents and cast-off types of construction of ten to twenty and thirty years ago.

If you want the BEST, that will save its cost over any of the others every year and last five or ten times as long, you can but choose the DE LAVAL. If for any reason you want something different, shut your eyes, buy the cheapest, and get your own separator experience quickest.
